

Who is Beverly Tran?

BEVERLY TRAN

An Original Source

Beverly Tran became an original source August 2, 2001 when her children were legally kidnapped from their beds in the middle of the night when police raided the wrong house.

While her children were in care, Beverly was forced to remain silent, with the threats of putting her children up for adoption if anything was ever spoken, to witness her children be tortured, violently raped, attempt suicide, survive attempted murder, overmedicated, heat attacks, starvation, and the list of horrors continues on.

During the next four years she lived through the corrupt hell of the foster care system. Beverly completed a her Bachelor Program at the University of Michigan in Industrial/Organizational Psychology with a minor in Organizational Communications going on to finish her Masters, Law Requirements and Doctoral Program in Political Science Public Policy with an expertise in Advanced Research Methodologies, the first in the nation to establish a specification of Child Policy at Wayne State University.

With a mastery of investigative tools in hand, Beverly turned the pain of witnessing her children being drugged and tortured in foster care by copiously analyzing the child welfare system, first hand as a field researcher. Accessing files, contracts and undercover interviews with foster care workers and administrators, she uncovered one of the largest fraud schemes in the history of the State of Michigan. After more than four years, the case was dismissed and her children were sent back home to her.

Her findings allowed her to convince the state to launch a major investigation leading to the shutting down of the 150 year old institution of St. Vincent Sarah Fisher Center, resignation of the State Directors of Department of Human Services and Department of Information Technology, and the reassignment of her referee from the bench. Her work with the U.S. Attorneys Office led to a major settlement in false claims of national health care programs where she began to consult with the U.S. Department of Justice in Medicaid fraud.

What Beverly realized was that these patterns of fraud exist in every state. She then designed formulas to identify the systemic errors and to format solutions. This manifested in her book, "Of Parental Rights: The Acquisition of Goods" which examines the origins of child welfare from ancient property law to its development of U.S. property law and extraordinary writs. She has twice testified to the U.S. Ways and Means Committee on Medicaid fraud and has been involved in Government Accountability Office studies on the psychotropic drugging of foster children.

Using the political arena as a launching pad, Beverly ran for local office as a method to expose the fraud in child welfare, to provide for the future well-being of her children and to make sure no human experiences this again.

Beverly Tran is formally listed on the Michigan Central Registry of Child Abuse and Neglect and currently consults for the U.S. House Judiciary. She was nominated by the Dean of the Congressional Black Caucus and the Co-founder of the Progressive Caucus to share her expertise with these institutions in political campaigns and civil rights icons who worked with Martin Luther King, Jr.. She has recently been appointed by U.S. Representative John Conyers, Jr. to the National John Coltrane Jazz Preservation Commission.

Beverly has recently begun lecturing in the area of U.S. Copyright Law for music legend George Clinton and is currently writing legislation for a specific tolling provision in 2012.

She has traveled extensively and is proficient in Netherlands and French with familiarity in Spanish and Vietnamese. She has worked with Lamborghini and Detroit Police Department.

Beverly is able to successfully bring this all together as a prolific blogger, an expert in SEO and internet technology.
